

EARJ

Escola Americana do Rio de Janeiro

July 15, 2013

It is my pleasure to write this letter of recommendation for Oriana Campbell. I worked with Oriana for one year while I was Lower School principal of The American School of Rio de Janeiro from August 2012 to July of 2013. The American School of Rio de Janeiro (EARJ) is an American school which educates expatriate and local children in an American based curriculum. There are currently 1000 students on three campuses. I was based at the Gávea, our main campus. I directly supervised Oriana.

Oriana is a team player who is always willing to do what is needed. Her biggest strength is her ability to connect with children. Her classroom becomes a student's favorite place. She makes everyone feel welcome and unafraid to try new things. She communicates frequently with parents and develops important partnerships with them. She is always gentle and kind with her students and they respect and love her for it. She often touched bases with me so I was aware of what was happening in her classroom. She recognizes that each student has great potential.

She is very organized and collaborates with her peers. I enjoyed observing her and hope she will continue to teach for a long time.

Sincerely,

Dr. Cristiana Jurgensen, Lower School Principal
The American School of Rio de Janeiro
